Waveland leaders discuss Hwy. 90 corridor revamp

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

The Waveland Board of Mayor and Aldermen on Monday hosted a meeting with representatives of Orion Planning + Design to discuss the “Hwy. 90 Refocus.”

Bob Barber with Orion Group said that the city engaged the group through Mississippi Power to look at the Hwy. 90 corridor in terms of future economic development and redevelopment. Barber said that Orion has done planning work across the country, including the Mississippi Gulf Coast, for the past several years.

“We have found the area incredibly dynamic, very forward-thinking and it is a really good experience for us,” Barber said.

Barber said the purpose of Monday’s meeting was to give the board an overview and objective data about the Hwy. 90 corridor.

“The corridor initiative is one we began discussing almost a year ago now,” he said. “The idea was to take a look at a strategically important place not only in Waveland but Hancock County and that is what you know as the Hwy. 90 corridor. It serves in many respects as downtown Hancock County. It’s very, very valuable to the city and the county at large. It’s an important place, it’s where people do lots and lots and lots of commerce. And there are opportunities in that corridor for even more, we believe.”

The center of the corridor is the intersection of Hwy. 603 and Hwy. 90 and the boundary extends to Bay St. Louis on the east side and to Waveland-Kiln Cutoff Road on the west side, Barber said.

“It encompasses some of your highest, most active commercial properties,” Barber said. “It encompasses some of your most dead commercial properties.”

Barber discussed details in relation to several points: Environmental; how land is used in the corridor; economics; mobility characteristics; overall characteristics; and initial survey data.

With regards to floodplain, Barber said that after a survey of impervious and pervious surfaces (what’s paved and not paved in the corridor), there’s “lots of stormwater management

The holiday events keep on rolling in Hancock County as the clock counts down toward Christmas.

Santa Claus came to Kiln and Diamondhead this past weekend, riding in the Kiln

Fire Truck Parade on Saturday and the Kiln Cowboy Parade and Diamondhead Christmas Parade on Sunday. The Diamondhead

Parade was a planned on-the-fly, Mayor Nancy Depreo said, since an unexpected delay in parking lot construction forced the city to cancel its annual Christmas on the Town Green celebration.

“I thought it was wonderful,” Depreo said. “In one week, we put together this parade, which shows the dedication of our residents and our business owners. Everybody pitched in and decorate their Jeeps and golf carts and brought Santa to town for our children. ... It was a success because of our residents and business owners.”

Depreo also praised the Hancock County

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund

has announced that “The Wall That Heals” — the mobile Vietnam Vets’ Memorial — will kick off its 2022 season in Bay St. Louis. The Bay-Waveland School District Board of Trustees on Monday unanimously approved a request to place it at the former North Bay Elementary site on Dunbar Avenue.

“This is a very, very big deal for Bay St. Louis and Hancock County,” Lonnie Falgout, chairman of the local committee tasked with setting up the event, told board members Monday. “This is the only place where the Wall will be coming for a thousand-mile radius.”

Falgout told the board that bringing the exhibit to Bay St. Louis was a years-long effort, “and something very special to my heart because I am a Vietnam veteran. I had an opportunity when I was in Washington, D.C., to see the (stationary) Vietnam Memorial ... and I have tried for the past two years” to get the traveling exhibit to come to the Bay.

The Hancock County Historical Society and the city of Bay St. Louis last week celebrated “Charles Gray Day in the Bay,” honoring the society’s long-time executive director with a gala at the Silver Slipper Casino’s lavish Blue Bayou restaurant.

“Charles is the living embodiment of the positive impact that one person can have on a community,” society President Chris Roth said during his opening remarks for the event.

Emergency Management Agency, Sheriff Ricky Adam and the sheriff’s office, Silver Slipper Casino, Sen. Philip Moran and Rep. Jay McKnight for participating in the parade.

A tragic incident occurred after the parade, Depreo said — a young man suffered a medical event and fell, hitting his head. He was rushed first to Ochsner Medical - Hancock Center, then airlifted to Children’s Hospital in New Orleans, where he remained Monday afternoon in stable condition.

Rumors circulated that the event occurred that the teen fell off the back of a golf cart during the parade, which is untrue, Depreo said. However, she said, “I was riding behind that golf cart for the entire parade. “Those three boys sat on the back of that golf cart and I watched them throwing candy to little kids for two hours, smiling and laughing the entire time. Those kids dedicated their Sunday — gave up their time when they would probably rather have been playing basketball — to throw candy to smaller children and bring smiles to their faces. It was heart-warming to see kids that age to do something so selfless. ... It broke my heart to know that one of them is hurt.” This past Friday, McLeod Park hosted “Elves in the Park,” with a tree-lighting ceremony, a visit from Santa and cookies and hot chocolate. The event was sponsored by the Hancock County Community Committee. During Elves in the Park, M.A.P. presented the Christmas play, “Everyone’s Christmas Story,” written by Kara Wilkins. If you missed the performance, you have another chance to see it today, Wednesday, Dec. 15, M.A.P. will present the play at St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Diamondhead, starting at 6:30 p.m. On Sunday, Dec. 19, M.A.P. will present the play at St. Rose de Lima Church on Necaie Ave. in Bay St. Louis, beginning at 2 p.m.

Other upcoming holiday events include:

- On Saturday, Dec. 18, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m., the city of Waveland will host the Coleman Avenue Christmas Street Fair. There will be doz-

A new roof for Christmas

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

In addition to providing help for local cancer patients, Constance Cares for Cancer has also added a new goal this year, “Baby Jesus gets a New Roof for Christmas!”
Hancock County native and Constance Cares for Cancer founder Michael Joseph said that the organization will be replacing the old roof on Mount Chapel Baptist Church, located at 721 Herlihy St. in Waveland.

The plan is to construct the new roof on Dec. 18, beginning at 9 a.m., Joseph said.
Right now, he said, they are seeking volunteers to help with construction and hardware stores and business willing to donate help and/or supplies.
Joseph said that Mis-issippi Power has already committed to help with supplies.

He added that he believes replacing the shingled roof can be completed in one day.
Anyone who wishes to donate supplies or volunteer can contact Joseph at 832-265-7791. Donations can also be made at www.constance-caresforcancer.org.

IT'S OK TO SAY HAPPY HOLIDAYS (and Merry Christmas, too)

December is always a sensitive month for many of us. Whether you're in the party that believes they are being persecuted against or the party that believes other's beliefs are being forced upon them, there's no doubt this issue comes up every year. The issue, of course, is whether it's acceptable to say Merry Christmas or Happy Holidays. In my personal opinion, why not both, depending on the situation?

Personally, I think if you know for a fact that the person you're addressing celebrates the Christmas holiday, by all means, say Merry Christmas. If you don't know that person very well or you are just meeting them or perhaps don't even get their name, then it might be better to say Happy Holidays. This is just a mark of consideration for others. You presume that the person you're addressing has the same beliefs, traditions and customs as you when you tell someone you don't know Merry Christmas, which may not be the case.

In this big, beautiful, wonderfully varied world of ours, there are hundreds of different countries, each with numerous cultures and countless belief systems and practices with an unmeasurable amount of facets to each one. The holiday of Christmas is just one. Even though we may feel it's fitting to tell others Merry Christmas because the holiday, for some of us, is the most wonderful time of the year and we want to share that joy, we fail to take into account that others have different days special to them, as well. Every day is a holiday to someone.

I don't believe that the so-called "War on Christmas" is meant to prevent people from celebrating the Christmas holiday. That would be mean-spirited and oppressive. By the same token, to emphasize Christmas over other holidays isn't right, either. We might give the argument that the majority of Americans celebrate Christmas, so it's OK to put it before other December holidays. We also forget that this is America where we have the individual freedoms to worship, celebrate and speak our minds as we please because we are so diverse in our ways of thinking and living.

The holiday season is meant to bring people together, not to drive them apart. Really, this should be the case all year 'round. If people are concerned that saying Happy Holidays is anti-Christmas or has a secular connotation, remember that the word "holiday" is a contraction of "holy day." The word origin itself is religious. Whatever you may or may not celebrate this December, I hope each and every one of you have a most wonderful season filled with much love, joy and peace. Be it Christmas, Hanukkah, Kwanzaa, Omisoka, winter solstice, whatever you celebrate, have the happiest holiday possible.

Hancock History: Santa Rosa

HANCOCK HISTORY
BY James Keating M.D.

Many small towns in the history of the United States and Hancock County have come and gone while others survived and even flourished to become small cities. One such extinct farming village in the northwest region of Hancock County was Santa Rosa. The compelling history of this place and some of its leading citizens from the Kellar family are the subject of this article. The story spans two hundred years from the migration of early pioneer yeoman farmers in the first half of the nineteenth century to modern times. This narrative of three generations of the Kellar family who grew up on small farms in Santa Rosa includes biographies of Ed Kellar, Dolph Kellar, and Tim Kellar. The Kellars were a vital catalyst to the amazing economic development in Hancock County in the second half of the twentieth century. This prosperity was fostered by a spirit of boosterism managed by able leadership and bold innovation by the county board of supervisors in Hancock County.

Santa Rosa is a historic area in the northwestern part of Hancock County that is now a ghost town. This old farm community was located where present day Texas Flat Road intersects with Highway 607. This town evolved along an ancient Indian trail known as the Old Black Wolf Trail. This trail traversed north/south along the east ridge of the East Pearl River and allowed migratory buffalo, and later Indians, to walk from the northern regions of the Pearl River to what would become the town of Gainesville without having to cross a major river. From Gainesville the trail went due east to present day Bay St. Louis, circumventing Devil's Swamp, that is now in the NASA Buffer Zone.

The ancient pathway, Old Black Wolf Trail, was the precursor of the Columbia-Gainesville Road. Small villages popped up along the Pearl River in the nineteenth century such as Walkiah Bluff, Henley Field, and Jackson Landing. In 1814, two thirds of Andrew Jackson's army passed through Santa Rosa along what was later called the Caesar-Flat Top Road. One third of that army went west along what would later become Highway 11 across three branches of the Pearl River. A third division of that army went south through Gainesville to Pearlington. From there cannons and heavy wagons were ferried to New Orleans via the Rigolets and Lake Ponchatrain, just in time to fight the British in Chalmette, LA, historically called the Battle of New Orleans. Santa Rosa has always been located at a crossroads of key byways in its history.

In 1835, President Andrew Jackson enforced the Indian Removal Act of 1830. Most of the Choctaw Indians of Hancock County and southern Mississippi moved to Oklahoma. A small group of them living in Center (Caesar) were advised by the Indian agent, Freeman Jones, to hide in Devil's Swamp. It is speculated they clustered in Santa Rosa which was near their original village. One modern day resident of Santa Rosa, Irma Kellar Frierson, reports that she discovered on her father's farm an Indian mound and plentiful artifacts such as arrowheads.

Let's help those leaving prison re-enter society

Guest Column
By Steven Randle

Each year, about 8,000 men and women leave prison in Mississippi. But with very little streamlined assistance currently available and unnecessary government roadblocks to work, a large percentage of those ex-offenders will be back in prison within a couple of years, continuing to put a strain on state budgets, families, and the economy.

Danny and Christy Austin are two Mississippians who could have been one of those statistics. The couple had struggled with addiction through much of their adult lives.

In his mid-20s, Danny found himself using drugs and stealing. He was also involved in gangs.

"I smoked weed for a long time and started doing hard drugs with the gangs," he said. "The very first time I ever used meth, I injected it. I lost my mind with it."

Christy was a functioning addict who eventually lost her children and her job.

"Living a life that was hard and fast is an understatement for me," Christy said.

She was arrested for felony possession of meth and dismissed from the nursing program where she was enrolled.

"Everything was falling apart," she said.

On the surface, their story isn't much different from many others serving time in prison. But after several run-ins with the law, the couple found redemption and a new path through a local organization.

But many leaving prison aren't that lucky. They often don't have a family or house to walk right into. If anything, the life they know is the life they had that led them to prison in the first place. We know they will need directions to employment, housing, substance abuse counseling, family restoration guidance, mental health services, and faith-based growth.

A 2021 report from the Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER) Committee highlighted a recidivism rate exceeding 30% within the first 36 months of release.

This means that these men and women are returning to prison after committing a new crime or failing to comply with their release's specific terms. Failed reintegration has the economic costs of court proceedings, inmate processing, and housing, but also the social costs of more victims, further destruction of families, and the image of the decline of public safety.

Several entities in Mississippi provide transitional beds, job and skills training, family counseling and parenting classes, and the list goes on. These various organizations, like Living Free Ministries, are doing great work in pockets of the state.

But if you are not internet savvy or do not have the means to scour Google for 16 pages of information that may or may not be relative to your specific problem, then what are you supposed to do.

Through technology, we could narrow that search. We can bring together a hub of information that these men and women could go to that provides an exhaustive list of services, jobs, and housing available in their specific geographic area that they could choose from depending on indi-

Donate Life Mississippi Recognizes MS Dept. of Public Safety “Donate Life Champions”

SEA COAST ECHO

Donate Life Mississippi annually recognizes Mississippi Department of Public Safety (DPS) examiners and stations for their outstanding partnership in saving and healing lives by registering Mississippians as organ, eye, and tissue donors. Donate Life Mississippi recently awarded 100 “Donate Life Champions”—those DPS examiners who achieved registration rates of 30% or higher during a designated time frame as well as the recipients of the “Red Heart Award”—the DPS stations with the highest overall performance in their specific region. This year’s recipients of the Red Heart Award are Oxford (Northern Region), Starkville (Central Region) and Kiln (Southern Region).

“The Driver Service Bureau is proud to partner with Donate Life Mississippi in their efforts of saving and enhancing lives through organ, eye, and tissue donation,” says Kevin Raymond, Director of the Driver Service Bureau. “As we continue our partnership, we hope to increase the numbers of Mississippians saying yes to donation when visiting our driver license offices or our website.”
The Mississippi Organ Recovery Agency (MORA) recognizes the critical role of the DPS in registering donors. “DPS is credited with registering more than 98% of Mississippi’s Donor Registry,” says Kevin Stump, MORA President and CEO. “We applaud the efforts of the DPS staff for their dedication to increasing the registry. Their efforts create hope for those waiting on a life-saving transplant.”

Mid-South Transplant Foundation (MSTF) congratulates those recognized adding, “We celebrate their success and thank the staff of DPS,” says Kim Van Frank, MSTF Executive Director. “Their dedication and hard work saves lives, restores sight, heals burns and enhances thousands of Mississippians.”
Donate Life Mississippi is a partnership among the Mississippi Organ Recovery Agency (MORA), Mid-South

Transplant Foundation (MSTF), Mississippi Lions Eye Bank (MLEB), Mississippi Hospital Association, and Mississippi Department of Public Safety.
A new patient is added to the national transplant waiting list every 10 minutes and an average of 20 people die each day awaiting a life-saving transplant that never comes. In Mississippi, there are more than 1,300 people waiting on a transplant. One organ donor can save eight lives and one tissue donor can save or heal the lives of 75 recipients or more.

vidual needs.
Finding a job is one of the critical factors in determining if a person leaving prison will run into new problems with the law. Ranking 50th in the nation with a labor force participation rate of 55.9 percent, Mississippi could most assuredly benefit from connecting willing and ready individuals in quality jobs. That was true long before the labor shortages of the past year.

Unnecessary barriers to work exacerbate that problem. About a quarter of middle-income jobs that don’t require a college education in Mississippi require an occupational license before you can work. But even if you spend the time and money to acquire that license, licensing boards may still deny an application if you have a criminal record. Whether or not it has anything to do with the job you are seeking.
We understand this may be applicable in some instances, but a blanket ban serves no functional purpose. The state could put more people to work and reduce recidivism, with a Fresh Start Act covering all occupations.

The legislature has begun digging into this issue. That is a good thing. Let’s help more people have the happy ending of Danny and Christy.

• HISTORY

Santa Rosa was called Tigerville in the nineteenth century, presumably because of the presence of wildcats in the primeval piney forest in the early days of settlement. A local waterway was called Turtle Skin Creek because early surveyors endured briars and thorny thickets as rough as a turtle’s skin or shell. The largest migration of settlers in the region along the Pearl River occurred after 1845. The local cemetery has gravestones inscribed as early as 1860. This traditional hallowed ground is known as the Turtle Skin Cemetery. The Corinth Baptist Church was built adjacent to the old graveyard in 1920. Early family names buried in this cemetery include Alsobrooks, Blackwell, Carroll, Dean, Fleming, Kellar, McFadden, McQueen, Smith, Thigpen, and Whitfield.

A planter named Jordan Smith established a plantation with slaves before the Civil War just south of Tigerville. The first telegraph line in Hancock County went from Gainesville to Tigerville to Mobile along the Texas Flat Road. The old Highway 11 road crosses the Pearl River and connects with Tigerville. From there the old Highway 11 went southwest to Highway 90 which could ultimately lead to Texas. In 1885 a post office was established in Tigerville. It existed for five years with R.B. Miller as postmaster. The small waterway in Tigerville known as Mike’s River is named after an early pioneer settler, Michael Beck.

A developer named Bilsby initiated a land development project in Tigerville around 1923 which he called Santa Rosa. The project was designed to envelop the whole town, but was abandoned in the planning stage, probably a casualty of the Stock Market Crash of 1929. Nevertheless, the name of the town, Santa Rosa, persisted.
The sawmill era brought jobs and prosperity to the area. The Weston family in Log-town maintained a large commercial gravel pit in Tigerville. The advent of railroads in Hancock County in the second half of the nineteenth century ended the importance of the Pearl River as a significant conduit of commerce. When the Sawmill Era ended in 1932, this region diminished in population and prosperity. Local farmers stayed on the land raising cattle and hogs and planting corn, sugar cane, and sweet potatoes. The Depression kept the farmer “land rich and money poor.” Nonetheless, these folks had enough to eat, and they survived.

In our next column, the early history of the Kellar and Frierson families will be presented.

Cowboy, as he was affectionately known, served two years in Korea as a member of the second battalion of Company E. He met his wife in the early 70’s in Louisiana during his reign as the number one Pool Shark of the Parish. So began the love story of the Louisiana Woman and the Mississippi Man. They ran a family truck stop and local bar together in Thibodeaux, LA. until he moved to Biloxi and then later to Gulfport MS in the 80’s where he began his career as an electronic technician for NASA. He loved traveling overseas and throwing some of the most epic pool parties on the Gulf Coast. He will always be a legend at the Goal Post and Good Times Lounges in Gulfport. He lived out the remainder of his life the last 5 years in Bay St. Louis, MS. to be near his daughter Danielle and Grandson Clark. He will be forever loved and missed by many.

A visitation will be held from 11:00 AM until 1:00 PM, Saturday, December 18, 2021, at Riemann Family Funeral Home, 11280 Three Rivers Road, Gulfport. The funeral services will begin at 1:00 PM in the funeral home chapel, followed by interment at Rotten Bayou Cemetery.

PAUL RAYMOND ROBINSON

Paul Raymond Robinson, age 90, passed away peacefully in his sleep, surrounded by his family on November 10 in Oxford, Mississippi.

Paul was born July 6, 1931 in New Castle Indiana. He graduated from New Castle High School in 1949, and attended college at New Mexico Western and Purdue University prior to enlisting in the Army and serving in combat during the Korean War. After returning back to his native Indiana he was invited by his aunt, Maude Beattie of Gulfport, MS, to come down and visit for some well deserved R and R. In September 1955 he took her up on the invitation and headed South to the Mississippi coast. While there, a random sighting of a pretty girl, Patsy Horne, getting off the city bus in Gulfport led to a blind date arranged by his aunt. That resulted in their marriage in December and their union lasted over 61 years until her passing in 2017.

Paul completed his degree at the University of Southern Mississippi under the G. I. Bill, and graduated with honors in Accounting. He and Patsy made their home in Jackson and later Canton, MS and raised three children. He worked for the IRS and several state agencies prior to opening a Goodyear Tire Dealership in 1974. He also served a term as President of the Mississippi Tire Dealers Association. After 25 years they sold the business, and retired to the Gulf Coast in 1998. They spent their early retirement years on the water in Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian, MS until they were hit by Hurricane Katrina. They rebuilt and decided to relocate further inland and found a new home in Cullman, AL. They enjoyed many years together with new friends from their church and community.

Paul loved being on the water, exercising, his New Orleans Saints and most of all his wife, Patsy. In his last year he frequently remarked that he missed her and was ready to be with her. He was a kind and generous man, and remained in excellent health with sharp mental acuity until the very end.

He was preceded in death by Patsy Robinson, his beloved wife of 61 years. He is survived by three children, John (Kaye) of Oxford, MS, Ann Robinson Kelly of Pass Christian, MS and James of Birmingham, AL; seven grandchildren, two step grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

A private memorial service will be held graveside at a future date.

Taco Bell may be coming to D’head

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

Diamondhead residents may soon get the opportunity to “run for the border” a little closer to home — B&G Food Enterprises, LLC was scheduled to go before the Diamondhead Planning and Zoning Commission on Tuesday evening requesting approval to build a Taco Bell restaurant at 4405 Aloha Drive.

“We are excited to get Taco Bell in the city,” Diamondhead Mayor Nancy Depreo said. “We feel it will be a strong catalyst for other businesses to come to Diamondhead. This is in line with our Diamondhead 2040 plan that shows buildings along east Aloha.”

According to the application, the restaurant would include a drive-through, 22 seats for indoor dining and a 10-seat patio.

While a lot of people are excited about the prospects of getting a new restaurant in Diamondhead, not everyone is on board with the plan — Dionne Gauthreaux of Diamondhead TrueValue Hardware posted an plea on social media for residents to attend the planning and zoning meeting and tell commissioners how they feel about the application.

“The area that Taco Bell is asking to build on is literally in our parking lot right in front of the store,” Gauthreaux said. “This will take away half of our parking allowing us two rows of single parking.”

Gauthreaux also said it would “help make the traffic eve more horrendous than it already is.”

Depreo said the application would not become a matter for the city council to decide — according to the city’s ordinances, the planning and zoning commission is in charge of approving or disapproving drive-through business applications.

The property is also privately-owned, Depreo said.

“I wish that TrueValue would get with the owner of the property and work on solutions that would be beneficial to everyone and have both businesses be successful.”

After the application process, Falgout said, the VVMF board decided to begin the 2022 tour in Bay St. Louis, and selected the former North Bay site by scanning the area via Geo-Portal.

Falgout said the funding to bring the exhibit to the Bay has already been secured, and will not cost the school district any money. It is being insured through the Alice Moseley Museum’s policy.

Although the VVMF is celebrating the 40th year of the exhibit, Falgout said, the Bay St. Louis exhibition will actually be the national debut of a newer, larger traveling memorial and an education center.

“It was actually in Diamondhead a few years ago,” Falgout said, “but that was a smaller version.”

“The Wall That Heals exhibit includes a three-quarter scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, along with a mobile Education Center,” according to a statement from the VVMF. “The 27th season of The Wall That Heals will begin on March 24, 2022, in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi and visit 29 communities during the year. The traveling exhibit honors the more than three million Americans who served in the U.S. Armed Forces in the Vietnam War and it bears the names of the 58,281 men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice in Vietnam.

“We look forward to providing these communities with a healing experience for local veterans and their families and an educational experience for all visitors on the continuing impact of the Vietnam War on America,” Jim Knotts, president and CEO of VVMF, said. “VVMF’s mission is to honor and remember all those who served in the Vietnam War and we are ready to work with out 2022 hosts to deliver a safe opportunity for thousands to experience the healing and educational aspects of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in 2022.”

The Wall will visit Bay St. Louis from March 24-27. It will arrive in the Bay after a Coast-long parade beginning in Pascagoula, traveling along Hwy. 90.

“It’s educational, but it’s also an economic endeavor,” Falgout said. “We’re looking at possibly anywhere from 25,000 to 50,000 people who will come to Bay St. Louis to see this exhibit.”

Other stops on the 2022 tour include:

- Garner, N.C., March 31-April 3.
 - Crawfordsville, Ark., April 7-10.
 - Knoxville, Tenn., April 21-24.
 - New Castle, Del., April 28-May 1.
 - Findlay, Ohio, May 5-8.
 - Belvidere, Ill., May 12-15.
 - Winchester, Ind., May 19-22.
 - Erie, Pa., May 27-30.
 - Norwalk, Conn., June 2-5.
 - Chisholm, Minn., June 23-26.
- The Bay St. Louis Vietnam Wall exhibit board of directors includes Falgout as its chairman; Myrna Green, executive director of the Hancock County Tourism Bureau; Michael Bell, member of the BWSD School Board of Trustees; Hancock County Sheriff Ricky Adam; Kathryn Sutton, director of Mississippi Heroes; Scotty Adam, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. Committee members include Craig Ray, director of Visit Mississippi; Gary Knoblock, Bay St. Louis councilman-at-large; Jackson County Sheriff Mike Ezell; Eric Lamky, American Legion Post 139 adjutant; and Cindy Schoonmaker, American Legion & Auxiliary/VFW liaison.

Top NASA Leaders Nelson and Melroy Visit SSC

SEA COAST ECHO

NASA Administrator Bill Nelson and Deputy Administrator Pam Melroy visited Stennis Space Center on Dec. 7, meeting with Stennis Director Rick Gilbrech and other site leaders, and also touring various center facilities.

The leaders toured the Fred Haise Test Stand, B-2 Test Stand, and E Test Complex, as well as the Aerojet Rocketdyne Engine Assembly Facility, where they were joined by area media for an interview session.

Nelson and Melroy both praised Stennis as a “national treasure,” noting the key role the center is playing in the agency’s Artemis plans to return humans, including the first woman and first person of color to the Moon in preparation for eventual missions to Mars.

Stennis is testing RS-25 engines that will help power NASA’s Space Launch System (SLS) rocket on deep space missions. Earlier this year, the site also tested the first SLS core stage prior to its upcoming Artemis I launch.

“This is an exciting point in our nation’s space history, and a lot of it is happening right here (at Stennis),” Nelson said as he and Melroy visited with media in front of an RS-25 engine at the Aerojet Rocketdyne facility. “Come February, engines like this are going to roar to life, ... and we’re going back to the Moon.”

In addition to promoting the U.S. space program, Nelson and Melroy highlighted benefits that both NASA and Stennis would receive under President Biden’s Build Back Better framework, including major improvements to modernize center infrastructure, and funding NASA secured in the recently-passed funding law that will help Stennis repair damage caused by Hurricane Ida.

To close the day, the leaders participated in a ceremony commemorating the March 2020 designation of the A-1 Test Stand at Stennis as the Fred Haise Test Stand. The designation honors Haise, a Biloxi, Mississippi, native, who served as the lunar module pilot on the famed Apollo 13 mission in 1970 and has been a steadfast supporter of the American space program, NASA, Stennis, and the INFINITY Science Center.

During the ceremony, Nelson and others praised Haise as a true American hero. “As long as humans dream of the stars, as long as this nation reaches beyond its bounds, as long as astronauts dare to go, they will dream and reach and go in the shadow of pioneers like Fred W. Haise,” Gilbrech noted.

The visit marked Nelson’s first trip to Stennis since he became NASA administrator in late April.

Louis City Council, officially declaring Dec. 7 as "Charles Gray Day" in the city.

"In the early years ... a handful of members struggled to create an active historical society," according to the proclamation. "Charles had a mission to promote and preserve the cultural heritage of our uniquely, old-timer, Southern/Americana historic districts in Bay St. Louis and Hancock County through the inspiring stories of our community, its people and over time increased the membership to 1,000 strong."

"Under his leadership, he has inspired others to continue his mission and establish a process to create a database using modern technology to preserve written documents, detail the people, places and architectural styles of Hancock County, Mississippi, while promoting Bay St. Louis as A Place Apart.

"As part of his undertaking, Charles Gray, 87 years young, has played a profound and essential role in our community, celebrating our special heritage and connecting our unique history to present-day residents, his vision was to retain the early history of Hancock County and continue to document our history going forward into the future."

Roth credited Virginia Olander, the historical society's director of communications, for spearheading the

"Over a year ago, Virginia seized on the idea that the historical society should do something to honor Charles Gray," Roth said.

Olander said that Gray was a "dreamer," one of those rare souls who has worked "to make the world a better place, a prettier place, a kinder place."

Even rarer, she said, Gray is also a "doer," who works to put his ideas into action.

She touched on the term "VIP," meaning "Very Important Person," but said "VIP" can also stand for "Very Interesting Person," or "Very Intelligent People," like those who filled the audience Tuesday night.

"Many of you here in this room donate your time and talent to organizations that would not survive without you," she said.

She also said Gray was a "Very Imaginative Person" and "Very Incomparable Person."

The gala also featured the premier of the film "Connections Matter: An Oral History of the People Places of Hancock County," starring Gray. Olander was the producer and creative director of the film.

"Our goal was to capture Charles on film so his energy and passion could be appreciated for years to come," Olander said.

She praised those who helped put it together, including producer Andy Barrett and historical society members Jeff and Mariann Kwiatt.

"Charles is a natural on film because he has done an investigative study of Hancock County," Olander said. "He loves to share his knowledge and is a storyteller par excellence. His enthusiasm, wit and attention to detail shines through the film. He deserves this legacy that will live on for years."

Gray said that the celebration in his honor was "incredible. It far exceeded my expectations."

Gray said he felt privileged to have spend the past 30 years or more working with such a great group of dedicated people, and he's proud of how far the Hancock County Historical Society has progressed.

"I think the best is yet to come," Gray said. "I feel great about the future and I'm really looking forward to what we're going to accomplish."

challenges related to the corridor."

With regard to land use, Barber said the corridor is "overwhelmingly" commercial.

The entirety of the corridor is about 250 acres, he said. About 30 percent of the highway corridor is vacant. There is one primary public use facility in the corridor which is the Waveland fire station.

Fifty-three percent of the corridor is highway commercial, meaning "heavily oriented to automobile traffic."

There is 73 acres of vacant land in the corridor, Barber said.

"When we see vacant land like that and we see a dynamic corridor, lots of value, lots of stuff happening, we see opportunity," he said.

About 58 percent of the corridor, as it relates to building floor space, is devoted to retail use. The remainder of the uses is split among service commercial and a mix of office and retail. About 708,000 square feet of retail space is the Lowe's, Walmart, Claiborne Hill, and other miscellaneous retailers, Barber said.

With regard to economics, Barber said that there are about 600 people working in the corridor.

"It's a big employer," he said.

Barber said that the data compiled on the retail sales given is about four years old, but said that the group plans to obtain the more current data.

Four years ago, the number of retail dollars was $63 million, Barber said.

"Nearly all of it is surplus dollars," he said. "Which means people are driving into the community to spend their money in that corridor."

Barber said that the retail sales is higher than that now.

"But none the less, let's use $63 million in retail sales and spread it over 708,000 square feet of retail space," Barber said. "That would give you a current sales of about $90 per square foot. Is that good? Is that bad? How do we assess that? A Walmart that is really, really doing well on average will trade at about $300 a square foot. If we were to conservatively say there's lots of other factors in the corridor. Let's just double it. We think you could reasonably expect sales possibly as much at least two times that's occurring there now."

Bert Kuyrkendall with Orion spoke about the mobility aspects of the corridor.

Both of the main routes are MDOT (Mississippi Department of Transportation) or state routes, he said, and Orion will be meeting with MDOT representatives this week.

"There are about 24,000 cars per day on the eastern end of the corridor," Kuyrkendall said. "It goes down to about 18,000 on the western side. Those are pretty big numbers, but not huge numbers."

Some of the items he said they will be looking at as they relate to corridor mobility include enabling more access besides driving and providing safer ways to cross the street.

"Crossings are a big deal," Kuyrkendall said. "There are a lot of things that people walk to or could walk to in the corridor. How can this primary commercial corridor connect to the rest of the city? There's lots of neighborhoods on both sides of 90. How can folks connect from the neighborhood to the corridor itself? In the area, there's a lot of people walking, biking, a lot of people using golf carts to get around. But, currently the way the corridor is configured, it's a barrier to that. Another big factor in that is curb cut management. When there are a lot of curb cuts, it makes driving less safe on the corridor. It makes walking less safe and it can actually kind of confuse access and make it more difficult to access businesses. We'll be looking at some of those concepts. How can there be more cross connection potentially between businesses and also how can we create more of a continuous corridor experience for driving, walking, and biking, and all the different modes of traveling?"

Lastly, Barber spoke of the experience one has traveling down the corridor.

Barber showed photographs captured by a drone of what can be seen upon entering the Hwy. 90 corridor.

"Looking at the 603 and 90 interaction, you'll see the dead motel on the left there where the lazy river thing is and the Rite Aid on the right," Barber said. "Then we begin to tune into some of the elements that are perhaps distracting, that don't quite convey the value that is the reality that's out in that corridor. We note the signs, the abandonment of the signs and some of the buildings that are in need of redevelopment and so forth."

Barber said that they are also looking at how the city regulates the corridor from the zoning code perspective as it relates to sign rules; how the landscaping standards are applied and/or enforced; and the design quality and standards.

Barber also spoke about the non-scientific survey conducted in partnership with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the city of Waveland. The survey consisted of about 16 questions and about 450 people responded.

Barber said that many of the respondents said that the corridor is well lit, safe to some degree, traffic controls are "alright" and the speeds are "okay."

Lower scoring items included: Quality of the landscaping, the "sense of identity in the corridor," and signage," he said.

Barber said that survey respondents would like to see improvement in areas such as landscaping, infrastructure, bike access, desire to address the vacant and abandoned buildings, the identity of the corridor, beautification, need for a "branded hotel," etc.

In terms of what businesses would make complimentary additions to the corridor, Barber said, respondents said they would like to see coffee shops, and arts and culture type businesses, more restaurants, and entertainment.

Barber said that he and his team will be in Waveland this week meeting with business owners in the corridor, MDOT officials, and also creating a framework to address the corridor.

Barber said that he also wants to be able to position the city to apply for the coastal funds that are available for infrastructure improvements.

Barber said that the team will have more specifics and concepts to present at Thursday's meeting.

The public will also have an opportunity to provide commentary and input on the corridor this Thursday, Dec. 16, during a second special meeting with Orion Group. The meeting begins at 5:30 p.m. in the boardroom at City Hall, located at 301 Coleman Ave.

Looking for community in a divided world

By C. GERALD RICHARDSON, D. MIN.*C. Gerald Richardson, D. Min.

One of the great questions confronting persons in our society during these days is, “How do we cope with situations which involve fundamental disagreements around sensitive issues?” It is important to note that such questions have a spiritual context. Our spirituality defines and guides our interactions with other people. This is not about denominational or doctrinal differences. There are many ways to think about personal faith and the variety of ways in which people may decide to live their lives and the values by which they live.

In the United States, and in much of the world, we are a pluralistic people. We look at the same issue, and we interpret it and make decisions regarding it in different ways. This is a reality which is as old as the human experience. The challenge becomes how do we live in such a world in community with others who may see the same issue in a much different way than ourselves?

As our country has become more diverse, we have discovered that sometimes situations which seem so obvious to us may be taken in a totally different way by someone with whom we work, worship, play, or share a neighborhood.

Some thoughts about navigating these challenges may be useful.

*We can learn to live out of our values while respecting those of others.

*We can decide to speak out when others refuse to respect our values. It is one thing to hold a personal value. It is quite another, and totally unacceptable, for others to demand that the value which we hold must be aligned with their own.

*We can strive to learn communication skills which enhance dialogue rather than escalate hostility. Use phrases such as “Help me understand what you are saying.” “Where can we find common ground?” “Is there a place where we can meet in a spirit of goodwill even if we do not agree?”

It is true that sometimes there are people with whom we are never going to agree. It is also true that there are boundaries to decency, tolerance, and fairness which should not be crossed. But it is worth noting that in most encounters, people of goodwill can find a way to have meaningful discussions without demonizing the other person.

All of us are part of the human family. Whatever our place in the personal, spiritual, or political spectrum, we can look for that which is good in the other person, respect their position, and expect that our own perspective will be respected as well. There will may be times when such an approach will not be accepted. When that happens, it is probably better to simply disengage and seek another direction for dialogue.

One thing is certain. We will either learn to live together, learn from and respect each other, or we will continue down a path of anger, destruction, and harsh outcomes. Like most situations in life, the results are usually up to us.

Meet Daisy!

This lovely lady is a beauty, and she has a lovely soul, too. Daisy is a mature gal of approximately 5 years old, but she didn't get the memo about being all reserved and stuffy. Lol! Instead, this pretty flower enters the room like a pup, seeking out love and belly rubs. She is a delightful girl, and has very quickly endeared herself to our staff & volunteers. She has all of the qualities to make a loving companion for a single person, couple or active retirees, or she could easily join a family with children. She came into the shelter with another dog, and she is friendly with the other dogs in her living area as well. Daisy is ready to show her new family the meaning of unconditional love. If you are interested in meeting Daisy, please come to the shelter, Mon-Fri 10am-3pm (Tues 12pm-3pm), or call our front desk at 228-466-4516 for an appointment. Thank you!

The event's fall theme and great music brought many in the community out to support the organization!

Shine-N-Brew was a Hancock County tasting experience with craft beer, homebrewers, and cocktail mixologists! Upon entering guests received a tasting bracelet that allowed them to taste the different drinks exhibitors had to offer. The event featured Kiln Shine, A Cut Above Bourbon, and A Cut Above Rye Whiskey from Crittenden Distillery. Hancock Resource Center hosted the event on Coleman Ave. in Waveland, which included 19 different exhibitors and over 20 different tasting options. Live entertainment included music by JC & Bay Town Groove, who rocked the night away while guests enjoyed tastings from different exhibitors.

Shine-N-Brew also featured pulled pork from Hometown Barbeque! The event began at 6 p.m. and came to close at 10 p.m.. All proceeds from the event went to benefit Hancock Resource Center, a 501(c)(3) Mississippi Nonprofit Corporation that works to stabilize families and strengthen the community. HRC's mission is accomplished by addressing obstacles and barriers to housing and coordinating services for families in need.

Exhibitors took home many different awards, which were created by BSL Creative Arts Center (see list of winners below).
